...your orator..charges that Crutcher never did pay your orator nor any person on his behalf one single cent of money in consideration of said bond or land.

It was further more agreed at the time of execution of said bond that..Crutcher was to hold it in his own possession and not assign it or dispose of it to any person. ....sometimes about September 1813 Crutcher did, as your orator believes, assign said bond to one Samuel Lynes (who your orator prays may be made defendant to this bill)...but before said assignment the said Lynes had filed a complete notice, as your orator believes, of all the circumstances attending the execution of said bond....

Your orator has by petition to the Circuit Court of Montgomery County since the execution of said bond attempted to get the errors in said grant rectified, but failed because it was considered by said Court upon an investigation of the record on which said land was condemned to be sold that no title was or could be conveyed by said sale to your orator.....Your orator is ready to exhibit such title papers to the court....

Judgement was obtained by Lynes in Circuit Court of Montgomery County at the February Term 1815 in the amount of Two hundred & twelve dollars and four cents besides cost.....Your orator offered to prove the aforesaid circumstances, but was precluded from introducing such testimony by the Court.....

On the 27th day of February and the tenth day of the Term of the Court...the complainant introduced as a witness in support of the allegations contained in his bill James Stewart who stated that sometime in the year 1802 he was present when the Sheriff of Montgomery County was about the sell for taxes a number of tracts of land and amongst others the tract mentioned in said bill. ....(he states same as Bell told)

....Ordered by the court that the injunction heretofore issued in this cause be dissolved and the bill be dismissed, and that the complainant pay all the costs etc.

FIFTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT COURT RECORDS 1816 - 1826

(original records are located in the Manuscript Section of the Tennessee State Library and Archives, Nashville. These records are also on microfilm.)

SEPTEMBER TERM 1818.

HUGH F. BELL vs SAMUEL LYNES

Pleas before the Honorable Thomas Stewart Esquire, setting a Judge of the Circuit Court of Montgomery County at the Court house in Clarksville on the third Monday in February 1817, Be it remembered that thertofore on the 9 th day of October 1815 Hugh F. Bell complainant against Samuel Lynes defendant filed his bill of Injunction in the Circuit Court.....

...Hugh F. Bell of Williamson County in the State of Tennessee late of Montgomery County.... sometimes about the 23rd day of July 1802 a tract of 640 acres of land or there about granted to one John Thompson or John Thomason was advertised to be sold at Clarksville...for taxes and costs...for the year 1799.

On the day of the sale, your orator came to Clarksville intending to purchase said land ...When your orator was about to bid for said land one Anthony Crutcher (now deceased) mentioned to your orator his intention to bid for and purchase the same land....it was agreed..between your orator and..Crutcher..that your orator should purchase said land or have it purchased for their joint benefit ..and that Crutcher should have a part of so much as should be struck off to your orator or his agent and should advance a proportionable share of the purchase money and also a like portionable part of any other expenses necessary to obtaining a title from the Sheriff.

..Your orator by his agent did purchase at said sale three hundred and eighty acres of said tract of land lying in Montgomery County for about the sum of nine dollars & seventy cents, the whole of which sum was advanced by your orator. The Sheriff of Montgomery County made a deed for said three hundred and eighty acres of land to your orator about the 24th day of June 1808.

Upon an examination your orator found there were several errors in the grant of said land, to wit..in the grantees name and in the description of the land. A rectification of which was necessary (was necessary) before your orator conceived a good title could be conveyed to him or had been conveyed. About the 22nd day of August 1812 long after the Sheriffs deed had been executed ..of which deed and the errors in said grant said Crutcher..was well advised and knew...the said Crutcher came in a complaining way to your orator and said he (Crutcher) was an old man sickly and would probably die efore long.. ..that he had no written evidence of said agreement about the purchase of said land and wished some memorandum of it from your orator..your orator replied that he would convey such a title to him as he should be able to get or perfect from the Sheriff when said mistakes were rectified in said grant, and a deed obtained in conformity with said description of said land when amended.

....Crutcher drew a bond to that effect..a copy of which is annexed...Your orator believes he should make a deed to Crutcher when your orator obtains a good title to said land and not before..and if no title is decreed to your orator by said purchase that none was to be conveyed to said Crutcher....

William Little Brown left Palmyra on the 29th and joined the army at Camp Beatie on October 4th. There he chafed and fretted under the discipline of army life, and as soon as the period of his enlistment had expired, he returned to Palmyra.

On April 23, 1814 "This week at Montgomery Court," he said, "If I should get the appointment of Solicitor-General for this circuit I shall probably stay in this place one or two years. My friends strongly advise my removal to Clarksville." On the 19th of June he moved to Clarksville. He was appointed Solicitor-General by Governor Blount and held the office from 1814 to 1815. In 1819 he was elected a member of the State Senate. As a member of the Senate he was the author of the celebrated Statute of Limitation of 1819 which gave repose to the land titles of the state. "This of itself", said Judge Guild, "would have been a proud feather in any man's cap."

At the conclusion of his term in the senate he removed to Nashville and opened a law office in partnership with Ephraim H. Foster. William Little Brown died in Nashville in 1830. His wife and three children had already deceased. He left his property to his brothers and sisters.

William L. Brown had married September 30, 1828 Louisa A. Gibbs.

The other son of Dr. Morgan Brown was Morgan W. Brown. He became an attorney. He lived in Nashville and was in 1848 United States District Judge of the State of Tennessee. He married November 4, 1826, in Davidson County, Ann Maria Childress. Judge Brown died in Nashville in 1873 leaving a will which is a matter of record. Mrs. Ann Maria Childress Brown was born 1809 and died 1878.

Of the daughters of Dr. Brown and Elizabeth, his wife, Elizabeth Little Brown married first Captain Samuel Vance of Montgomery County, Tennessee, and second, William Thompson, a residence of Davidson County.

Sarah Brown, another daughter, became the wife of Frederick W. Huling and resided in Louisiana.

Rebecca Brown, another daughter, married Charles Neal and resided in Indiana.

Catherine Stewart Brown married Judge William Arthur Cook, who died in Nashville about 1842 leaving a will. Mrs. Cook died in Memphis, Shelby County, Tennessee, December 15, 1849, and was survived by Mary E, wife of Seth Wheatly; Morgan B. Cook; William S. B. Cook; George W. Cook and Elizabeth, wife of Samuel Warren Ayres. Mary R. Brown (Mrs. Seth Wheatly) died December 23, 1849, leaving surviving children Catherine, Arthur and Mary Wheatly.

Among the most widely known and distinguished of Dr. Morgan Brown's descendants was Brown Ayres, educator, born in Memphis, Tennessee, May 25, 1856, son of Samuel Warren and Elizabeth Little (Cook) Ayres. His father's occupation was that of a lawyer. His paternal grandparents were Isaac and Mary Furman (Smith) Ayres and maternal grandparents were William Arthur and Catherine Stewart (Brown) Cook.

Besides being a learned and skillful physician Dr. Brown was well informed in the legal science especially the law of real property and conveyances, having at one time of his life obtained license to practice that profession. The natural inclination of his mind led him chiefly to the pursuit of general literature and science, having accumulated during a long life of reading and study from a mass of general information of much original thought and reflection of his own--particularly of Moral, Religious and Metaphysical subjects, to which he had devoted many years of his life; examining with perfect independence and freedom the opinions of others determining for himself what seemed to him the true interpretation and authenticity of the scriptures, after a most thorough study of their contents and history.

It was said, that no man was more familiar with the Bible than he was, having formed, as it did, a principle study to the latest period of his life. His thoughts and opinions on these subjects and many others he left in a large body of manuscript writings--having early acquired the habit of expressing himself with equal facility on paper or in conversation.

As a disputant and controvertist he had few equals, arguing with great skill, force and acuteness, and bringing forward an array of fact and to the extent and correctness of information and reference, so logically marshalled and skillfully argued, as not to be casually met or resisted. Yet, he sought and contended alone for what he conceived to be truth; hence he never resorted to trick or sophistry, but always rested entirely on the force and soundness of his argument.

He was buried on the Cumberland Bluff on his homeplace near Nashville. About 1887 all the remains in the family burial plot were removed to Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

His will is recorded in Davidson County. In it he devised to his four daughters, Elizabeth, Sarah, Rebecca and Catherine, $100 each to be paid out and kept as a commemoration from their deceased mother. "I also give to my said daughters, one half Eagle, which I received for pay for service in the Revolutionary War in the year 1777." He named his son, Morgan W. Brown and Grandson, Charles Neal. The latter he left $500 to be divided between him and his sister. The will bears the date August 15, 1839. It was probated 1840.

There is definite proof that Dr. Morgan Brown was very proud of the fact that he wore the Silver Crescent. This was the emblem of General Francis Marion's Brigade during the Revolution.

Dr. Brown and Elizabeth (Little) Brown were parents of eight children.

William Little Brown, born August 9, 1789 in Cheraw District South Carolina, became an attorney. The tenor of his professional life was somewhat interrupted in the latter part of the year 1813, by the exuberance of his patriotism. Soon after his return to Palmyra he received news of General Hull's capture, with sensations of the most bitter and poignant kind. Great apathy was manifested by his neighbors. "Patriotism is extinct", he declared. On August 30, 1813 the massacre of Fort Mims occurred which aroused the ardor of all the people of Tennessee. On the 25th of September, Governor Willie Blount issued his call of volunteers.

Catherine Stewart, could trace her ancestry back through a long line of Scotch nobility to Robert, Duke of Albany, who was third son of King Robert II of Scotland. She was second cousin to Charles Stewart, who represented Montgomery County in the Tennessee Legislature in 1801 and to Duncan Stewart who was elected from the same county to the State Senate in 1803 and again in 1805, and for whom the county of Stewart was named. Her father was the son of Chief Justice William Little, and the grandson of Chief Justice Christopher Gale of the Proprietary Government of Carolina.

At the Little homestead Dr. Morgan Brown and Elizabeth Little were married in 1784, and there William Little Brown, their eldest son, was born August 9, 1789.

Morgan Brown resided for a few years in South Carolina not far from his boyhood home in North Carolina. In 1795 he moved his family to Tennessee and settled on the banks of the Cumberland River.

Dr. Brown was a bold, resolute, masterful man. He was a leader in the American Revolution in North Carolina. In business affairs he evinced the same daring energy and determination. In 1795 Tennessee was a part of the Southwest Territory. Dr. Brown selected the south bank of the Cumberland River at the mouth of Deason's Creek in the present Montgomery County to make his home. Here he went to work with great energy. He laid out a town, which was established by the Legislature in 1796, under the name of Palmyra. He had sufficient influence and address to have his town made "a Port of Entry" in 1797 ... then the only "Port of Entry" in the West. Two years later, however, Palmyra was deprived of this distinction in favor of Cincinnati.

Dr. Morgan Brown erected a mill in which business his father had made a fortune in North Carolina. About 1802 Dr. Brown built a furnace some three and a half miles from the mouth of Yellow Creek, for the manufacture of iron out of the ores contained in the hills around Palmyra. He had a store, carried a stock of drugs which he sold to the public, as well as used in the practice of his profession. He bought and sold lands, which he had learned to survey at so tender an age that he could not remember when he was ignorant of the art.

In the meantime he had been elected chairman of the County Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions of Montgomery County and continued to hold the office until he removed to Kentucky in 1808. In 1820 he moved to three miles north of Nashville, Davidson County, Tennessee.

The Montgomery County records are full of items in which Dr. Brown was affiliated. In Will Book I, page 317, Morgan Brown for "Love and Affection to my daughter, Elizabeth" and in consideration of marriage having taken place between her and Capt. Samuel Vance, gave to his daughter a slave. This record is dated October 21, 1807, and apparently was shortly before he left for Kentucky. This same daughter married a second time as will be shown later.

Dr. Brown became a member of the "Order of the Cincinnati", composed of General George Washington and his officers. Dr. Brown died in Nashville on March 9, 1840 aged 83 years. Mrs. Elizabeth Little Brown preceeded her husband and died 16 April 1829 in her 64th year of age.

of the death of his grandfather. The story of his trip as written by Dr. Brown himself is fascinating but too long to be given here.

Hardly had Morgan returned to his North Carolina home than the Revolutionary Guns begin to roar and Brown felt it his duty to his country and that his country demanded his services.

Morgan Brown served as a Sergeant in Capt. Samuel Wises's Company, under Lieutenant Benjamin Hicks, Major James Mason, and Col. William Thompson of the Third Regiment. This was a regiment of minute men who found their own horses, arms and clothing; who were paid $12.33 1/3 per month. The Sergeant's pay was $15.33 1/3 per month. Sergeant Brown was captured and kept imprisoned for a time. He returned home December 15, 1776, where he received a letter from Col. Thomas Wade, then a member of the Legislature of North Carolina, accompanied by a commission dated June 1776 appointing him First Lieutenant in the Ninth North Carolina Regiment.

Lieutenant Brown at once recruited men for the service and on March 24, 1776, marched with thirty recruits and joined the Regiment serving under the following officers: Captain Joseph John Wade and Richard D. Cook; Col. Williams, Major William Polk, and served until October 14, 1777.

On July 20, 1780 Morgan Brown was made assistant commissary of purchase to the Southern Army in which capacity he served five months and eleven days.

On September 15, 1780 Brown was appointed Assistant Commissary of Issue serving three months and sixteen days for the Southern Army. On January 1, 1781, he was made Superintendent of Transportation and served three months for the Southern Army. Two letters dated Hillsboro, North Carolina, September 22, 1780, and October 1, 1780, from William Pendergast, D.C.G.P. to Morgan Brown A.C.P. in regard to provisions for the troops (Southern Army) are part of the claim filed in 1832 toward establishing a right for pension under the Act of 1832.

Little more than a lad of sixteen he was in the Battle of Sullivan's Island and Chadd's Ford. He was in the Battle of Brandywine and was at Germantown.

Dr. Brown served his country in various capacities during the Revolutionary War...first as a volunteer under Col Thompson, during which service he was at the defence of the City of Charleston from the attack made on that place by the British fleet under Sir Peter Parker...afterwards as lieutenant of infantry in the Ninth, having been present at the Battle of Brandywine and some minor engagements between the American and British forces. At a later period of the war, he acted as Assistant Commissary to the Southern Army under Baron de Kalb, Gates and General Nathaniel Greene, and as Superintendent of Transportation under the last named commander.

After the war Dr. Brown served several sessions in the Legislature of South Carolina.

Returning home at the end of the war Dr. Brown soon found just across the state line near the Old Cheraw in South Carolina was the home of Elizabeth Little of an honorable family. Her mother whose maiden name was

On Sunday, October 10th, 1976, in Mt. Olivet Cemetery on the Lebanon Road, Nashville, Tenn., the D.A.R. honored Dr. Morgan Brown.

These Browns were of English descent. They trace their lineage back to Sir Anthony Brown, master of horse to King Henry VIII, on whom was conferred the "singular privilege of wearing a hat in the King's presence." His son, Anthony, Viscount Montague, was the father of the celebrated Religious Reformer, Robert Brown. Sir Robert Cecil, when he was Secretary of State, gave Edward, the son of Robert Brown, who was his friend and kinsman, employment in his office, where he was associated with George Calvert, afterwards Baron Baltimore. When Lord Baltimore obtained the grant of Maryland, Edward Brown sailed with his first party of colonists, landing at St. Mary's in March 1633.

From this emigrant descends a long line of Morgan Browns, one of whom, the father of our subject, emigrated from Maryland to Anson County, North Carolina around 1750.

Dr. Morgan Brown was born Friday, January 13, 1758 at the Crassy Island on PeeDee River in Anson County, where he resided with his parents when he entered the United States service, October 1, 1775, a little more than sixteen years of age.

Morgan Brown was the fourth generation carrying that name. His father intended that his son should become a physician, and although the schools of the country were of little account, young Morgan was kept constantly at them for four or five years, after which it was his father's plan to send his son to an Academy at Charlotte, in Mecklenburg County, then recently established. However, the senior Brown having some business in Maryland, in the year 1774, the son then about fifteen years old, sent young Morgan on the long journey, with little company and less protection. The man traveling with him left Morgan about four hundred miles from home by the roadside in a high fever and delirium.

When sufficiently recovered the boy went to a house where he was hospitably entertained. The next day Morgan continued his journey in hopes of overtaking the faithless companion, but without success. He continued the journey until he reached the home of a relative, Aunt Rachel, the widow of Uncle Darden Brown. Soon he was with his cousins, Morgan and Doctor James Brown, whom he had seen in Carolina. There was also Uncle Joseph Brown.

In Kent County he found his grandmother who was old but in good health, and gave Morgan the history of the family which included a detailed account
